To really understand homelessness, you have to look beyond the numbers and the metrics. L.A.'s Homeless Count helps us get a clearer picture of our unhoused neighbors and measures how our community is taking care of the most vulnerable among us.

Are we helping to expand the social safety net to prevent people from falling into homelessness in the first place? Are we making it easier for working families to find affordable housing? How many people are still slipping through the cracks? And what more could we be doing to help them?

For answers to these questions, join Everyone In's interactive webinar this Friday, June 1 at 12pm:

By guiding you through the count, the Everyone In Campaign will provide you with some context behind the still-staggering figures. We're proud to count United Way and the Everyone In Campaign as vital partners, and are happy to share this opportunity with our Homeless Count Volunteers.

The broad cross section of Angelenos who are currently without a home- single mothers; people struggling with physical disabilities, mental illness and addiction; the unemployed and the underpaid; veterans and college graduates; survivors of abuse and victims of bad luck.

The Everyone In Campaign's goal is simple: share what's working and learn about what's not so we can change it.

If you believe we need to bring Everyone In, RSVP here:
